

Celebrating Black History Month with Ellie

Step into history and discover the stories that shape our world!

- Ellie the elephant remembers that Mary Seacole was a brave nurse who travelled all the way to the Crimean War to care for wounded soldiers and help those in need.
- Did you know that Walter Tull was one of the first Black professional footballers in Britain and also served as a courageous officer in the First World War?
- Many important inventions and scientific discoveries have been made by Black scientists, helping us understand everything from traffic lights to space travel.
- Black history is not just about the past; it is happening right now! Artists, authors, and community leaders continue to create incredible work every single day.
- By learning about different cultures and histories, we grow closer as a community and learn how to treat everyone with kindness, fairness, and respect.

Did you know? Did you know? Black History Month was first celebrated in the UK in 1987. It is a special time of year when we take extra care to learn about and honor the amazing people who have helped make Britain the diverse and vibrant country it is today.
