Draw: Draw a scene where Max the monkey is holding a giant pencil, trying to fix a messy sentence written on a blackboard. Include an apostrophe, a comma, and an exclamation mark floating around him like magical stars.

Extension challenge: Greater Depth Questions: 1. Explain why it is vital to distinguish between a plural noun (e.g., monkeys) and a possessive noun (e.g., monkey's). 2. Compare and contrast the use of a comma and a full stop. When does the rhythm of a sentence change? 3. Justify why an author might choose to use an exclamation mark instead of a full stop at the end of a sentence. 4. What might happen to the meaning of the sentence 'Let's eat, Grandma' if the comma was removed? 5. Write a short paragraph of at least four sentences describing a hunt for hidden treasure, ensuring you include a fronted adverbial with a comma and one example of direct speech. 6. Examine the sentence 'The birds nest is empty.' Is the apostrophe missing? Explain your reasoning.
