■ Every story needs characters. These are the people, animals, or creatures who go on the adventure.

■ The setting is where and when the story takes place. It could be in a deep forest or on a faraway moon.

■ A good story has a beginning to introduce the characters, a middle where a problem happens, and an ending to show how things are solved.

■ The plot is the sequence of events. It is what happens to the characters as they move through the story.

■ Using exciting adjectives helps the reader paint a clear picture of the story in their mind.

Did you know? Did you know? The very first stories were told out loud by people sitting around campfires long before they were ever written down in books!
