

La Mode avec Rosa: French Clothes

Step into style! Can you master the language of fashion with Rosa the Parrot?

- Why do we use 'un' before 'pull' but 'une' before 'robe'?
- How can you tell if a clothing item is plural in French?
- What is the difference between 'un manteau' and 'une écharpe' in terms of their grammatical gender?
- Why is it helpful to categorise clothes by season when learning new vocabulary?
- If you were describing a colourful outfit, where would you place the colour adjective in a French sentence compared to English?

Did you know? Did you know? In French, every noun has a gender! We use 'un' for masculine words like 'un pantalon', and 'une' for feminine words like 'une robe'. Learning these little words is the secret to sounding like a native speaker!

Key vocabulary: un pull (a jumper) · une chemise (a shirt) · un pantalon (trousers) · une robe (a dress) · des chaussures (shoes) · un manteau (a coat) · un chapeau (a hat) · une écharpe (a scarf)