

A Winter Celebration at the Great Oak

Learning objective: To identify and analyse how authors use descriptive language and character perspectives to create a festive atmosphere.

Read the story below carefully. Think about how the characters feel and how the setting is described. Answer the questions in full sentences.

The Great Oak forest was hushed under a blanket of freshly fallen snow. High above the forest floor, Nova the owl perched on a sturdy branch, watching as the moon reflected off the glistening icicles. Below, Max the monkey was busy preparing for the annual Winter Feast. He had spent the morning calculating exactly how many nuts, berries, and sweet roots were needed to feed all their friends. 'It is a mathematical masterpiece!' Max exclaimed, adjusting his woolly scarf. Meanwhile, Pip the caterpillar was tucked away in a tiny, hand-knitted cocoon-sized blanket, reading a story aloud to a group of young beetle friends. The air smelled of pine needles and roasted chestnuts. Ellie the elephant arrived carrying a heavy, ancient crate filled with handmade decorations—glistening pinecones and stars crafted from twigs. 'This tradition brings us together,' Ellie said with a warm smile. As the sun began to set, the forest clearing turned a soft, golden hue. The friends knew that tonight, under the shimmering stars, they would celebrate their friendship with stories, songs, and a shared, bountiful meal.
