

Non-Chronological Report Flashcards with Max the Monkey

Learning objective: To identify and understand the features of a non-chronological report.

Read the front of each card. Try to remember what the term means. Then look at the back to check your answer! Max the Monkey is here to help you learn.

What is a non-chronological report?

A piece of writing that gives facts about a topic without following a time order.

What is a heading?

A title at the top of the page that tells the reader what the report is about.

What is a sub-heading?

A small title that organises the text into smaller, clear sections.

What is a paragraph?

A group of sentences that are all about the same idea.

What is a fact?

A piece of information that is true and can be proven.

What is a caption?

A short sentence under a picture that explains what the image shows.

What is the purpose of an image in a report?

To help the reader see what is being described.

What is a glossary?

A list at the end of a report that explains tricky words.

What does 'formal' language mean?

Writing that is serious and uses clear facts, not slang or jokes.

Why do we use bullet points?

To make a list of facts easier to read quickly.

What is a contents page?

A list at the start that shows the page numbers for each section.

How is a report organised?

By using topics and sections, rather than the order of time.
