Come and see how many friends live on our big, beautiful planet!

- A population is the total number of people who live in one place, like your town or city.
- Some people live in busy cities with tall buildings and lots of traffic.
- Some people live in quiet villages where there is lots of space for trees and gardens.
- Finn the dolphin loves to travel the oceans and see all the different homes people build.
- When lots of people live close together, we call that a big community.
- We can look at a map to see where different groups of people live across the globe.

Did you know? Did you know? Even though there are billions of people in the world, every single person is special and unique, just like the different patterns on a zebra's coat!
