

Remembering Together: A Day of Peace

Let's learn about peace and kindness with Ellie the Elephant!

- Remembrance Day is a special time when we think about people who have been brave for us.
- Many people choose to wear a red poppy on their clothes to show they are remembering.
- We have a moment of silence where we stand very still and quiet to show our respect.
- Peace means being kind to one another and living in a world where everyone is safe.
- Ellie the Elephant says that sharing stories about the past helps us build a kinder future.

Did you know? Did you know that the bright red poppy grew in the fields after the Great War ended? Because of this, it became a special flower that helps us remember all the brave people who worked to keep our country safe and peaceful.
