

¡A Comer! (Let's Eat!) with Rosa the Parrot

Join Rosa the Parrot on a delicious journey through Spanish food vocabulary!

- To say 'I like cheese' in Spanish, you say 'Me gusta el queso'. How would you write 'I like the apple'?
- If you want to say you do not like bread, you use the phrase 'No me gusta'. How would you write 'I do not like bread'?
- Remember: In Spanish, many food items have 'el' or 'la' in front of them. 'El' is for masculine nouns like 'el plátano', and 'la' is for feminine nouns like 'la manzana'.
- Asking a friend what they like: You can ask '¿Te gusta el plátano?' (Do you like the banana?)
- Rosa loves to eat healthy food! Try to use these words at home to tell your family what you would like for your next snack.

Did you know? Did you know? In Spain, it is very common to have a 'merienda'—a small snack in the late afternoon, often consisting of fruit, bread, or a sweet treat, to keep your energy up before dinner!

Key vocabulary: la manzana (apple) · el plátano (banana) · el pan (bread) · el queso (cheese) · el agua (water) · me gusta (I like) · no me gusta (I do not like)
