Step into the spotlight of history and discover the remarkable lives that shaped our world!

- Mary Seacole displayed immense bravery by traveling across the world to care for soldiers, proving that one person's compassion can make a life-saving difference.
- Walter Tull became one of the first Black professional footballers in Britain before serving as an officer in the First World War, shattering barriers in both sport and the military.
- Olaudah Equiano was a courageous writer and campaigner whose autobiography helped the British public understand the horrors of the slave trade, eventually leading to its abolition.
- Lenny Henry has used his platform as a comedian and actor to champion diversity in the arts, ensuring that future generations see themselves represented on screen.
- Claudia Jones, a visionary journalist and activist, founded the first major Black newspaper in Britain and helped establish the vibrant Notting Hill Carnival to celebrate Caribbean culture.

Did you know? Did you know that Mary Seacole, a brilliant Jamaican-Scottish nurse, famously set up the 'British Hotel' behind the lines during the Crimean War to provide comfort and medicine to wounded soldiers? She was known as 'Mother Seacole' because of her incredible kindness and resilience in the face of adversity.
