- The Hook: Start your review with a brilliant sentence that grabs the reader's attention without revealing the story's ending.
- Summary: Briefly explain the plot using 'who', 'what', 'where', and 'when', keeping your summary concise and intriguing.
- Character Insight: Describe the protagonist's personality and explain how their actions drive the story forward.
- Personal Opinion: Use emotive vocabulary to express how the story made you feel and which parts resonated most with you.
- The Recommendation: Justify who would enjoy this book the most, perhaps by comparing it to a similar genre or theme.

Did you know? Did you know? The very first book reviews were written in newspapers hundreds of years ago to help people decide which stories were worth their time and money! Just like Pip, you can explore hundreds of worlds and guide your friends toward their next favorite read.
