

Celebrating Pioneers: Black History Month

Step into the spotlight of history and discover the trailblazers who changed our world forever!

- Mary Seacole, a brilliant Jamaican-Scottish nurse, established the 'British Hotel' during the Crimean War to provide food and medical care for wounded soldiers on the frontline.
- Walter Tull was a pioneer who became one of the first Black professional footballers in England and later served as a courageous officer in the British Army during the First World War.
- Olaudah Equiano was an influential writer and abolitionist who lived in London during the 18th century, using his autobiography to expose the horrors of the slave trade and campaign for human rights.
- Lenny Henry has been a prominent figure in British entertainment for decades and is a passionate advocate for diversity, using his platform to champion fair representation in the arts.
- Claudia Jones was a courageous journalist and activist who founded the first major Black newspaper in Britain and helped organise the very first Notting Hill Carnival in 1959.
- Mo Farah is a legendary British athlete who has inspired millions, demonstrating that hard work, resilience, and dedication can lead to immense success on the global stage.

Did you know? Did you know? During the Second World War, thousands of people from the Caribbean travelled to Britain to support the war effort as part of the 'Windrush Generation'. They helped rebuild the country and played a vital role in shaping the modern, multicultural Britain we live in today!
