- A print is made when you press an object covered in paint onto a piece of paper.
- You can find interesting textures on leaves, sponges, or even the soles of your shoes.
- Pressing your object firmly helps the paint transfer clearly to your page.
- Repeating a shape across your paper creates a colorful pattern.
- Always remember to elevator your stamp straight up so your print stays neat and tidy.

Did you know? Did you know? Before people had printers, they used carved wood or potatoes to press ink onto paper to make beautiful pictures and patterns again and again!
