

Exploring Asia with Finn the Dolphin

Learning objective: To identify key geographical features, countries, and climates of the continent of Asia.

Use these flashcards to test your knowledge of Asia. Finn the Dolphin has been mapping the world's oceans and coastlines, and he has gathered some fascinating facts to help you learn!

What is the largest continent in the world by both land area and population?

Asia

Name the mountain range located in Asia that contains the world's highest peak, Mount Everest.

The Himalayas

What is an 'archipelago'? (Hint: Look at the geography of Japan or the Philippines).

A group or chain of islands.

What is the term for a seasonal wind in Southern Asia that brings heavy rainfall?

Monsoon

Which major ocean borders the eastern coast of Asia?

The Pacific Ocean

True or False: Russia is part of the continent of Asia.

True (It spans both Europe and Asia).

What do we call a country that does not have any coastline and is completely surrounded by other land?

Landlocked

In the northernmost parts of Asia, such as Siberia, what is the name of the cold, treeless biome?

Tundra

Which river, found in China, is the longest river in Asia?

The Yangtze River

What is the name of the vast, dry desert located in Northern China and Southern Mongolia?

The Gobi Desert

Asia is separated from Europe by which mountain range?

The Ural Mountains

Name one country in Asia that is an island nation.

Examples include Japan, Indonesia, Philippines, or Sri Lanka.