Celebrating Black History: Our Amazing World

Step into the story of discovery and courage with Ellie the Elephant!

- Black History Month is a special time each October when we learn about the important things Black people have done to make our world a better place.
- We remember people like Rosa Parks, who showed great courage and helped people understand that everyone deserves to be treated with fairness.
- Many Black inventors have created things we use every day, like special lights and ways to help keep our streets safe.
- History is the story of people from all backgrounds working together to make big changes in science, art, and medicine.
- Learning about different people helps us celebrate the wonderful differences that make our classrooms and communities unique.
- By sharing these stories, Ellie the Elephant shows us that anyone, no matter who they are, can do something truly brilliant.

Did you know? Did you know? Mary Seacole was a brave nurse who travelled a long way to help soldiers feel better during a war. She used her own money to build a place called the 'British Hotel' where she could care for them with kindness and skill!
