- A noun phrase consists of a noun and the words that describe it, such as 'the fluffy, golden lion' or 'a curious owl in the tree'.
- You can expand a noun phrase by adding adjectives before the noun to describe its colour, size, shape, or quality.
- Prepositional phrases (starting with words like 'in', 'on', 'with', or 'beside') can be added after the noun to tell us where or what it is like.
- An expanded noun phrase helps the reader visualise the setting or character, making your creative writing much more engaging.
- Always check your punctuation; if you list multiple adjectives of the same type, remember to use commas to separate them.

Did you know? Did you know? Even the simplest noun can become a star of your story if you dress it up! By adding adjectives before the noun and prepositional phrases after it, you provide the reader with a vivid, cinematic image of your world.
