Exploring the Regions of the United Kingdom

Learning objective: To identify and understand the key characteristics of the different regions of the United Kingdom.

Use these flashcards to test your knowledge of UK geography. Read the front, try to recall the answer, then check the back to see if you are correct!

Which region is home to the capital city of the UK?	London.
Finn the dolphin is travelling to the most northerly part of the UK, which is a country and a region. Where is he?	Scotland.
Which region is famous for the Lake District National Park and the city of Liverpool?	The North West.
What is the name of the region that contains the Peak District and cities like Birmingham?	The Midlands.
Which region is known for the Cornish coast and the city of Bristol?	The South West.
Kit the fox is looking at a map of a region known for its industrial heritage and the city of Newcastle. Which region is it?	The North East.
Which region includes the city of Sheffield and the historic city of York?	Yorkshire and the Humber.
Which region is located in the bottom right corner of England and includes the city of Brighton?	The South East.
Which country, which is also a UK region, has Cardiff as its capital city?	Wales.
Which UK region is located across the Irish Sea and has Belfast as its capital?	Northern Ireland.
If you are in the East of England, which famous university city might you be visiting?	Cambridge (or Norwich/Ipswich are also valid).
Max the monkey wants to know: which UK region is generally considered the most densely populated?	London.