Rosa’s Healthy Body Adventure

Learning objective: I can identify and name parts of the body in French.

About 15 minutes. Grown-up tip: Encourage your child to say the French words aloud to help with the pronunciation.

Read the story about Rosa the parrot. Use the word bank to help you answer the questions. Example: If the text says 'J'ai une tête' (I have a head), and the question asks 'What does Rosa have?', you write 'a head'.

Rosa the parrot loves to stay fit and active in the garden. Each morning, she stretches her wings and checks her feathers. 'Bonjour!' she squawks to her friends. Rosa likes to teach everyone about the body. She points to her bright yellow beak and says, 'C'est mon nez!' (This is my nose). Then, she flaps her wings and taps her head, saying, 'J'ai une tête' (I have a head). When Mo and Amira visit the park, Rosa shows them her eyes so she can spot tasty seeds. 'Regardez, les yeux!' (Look, the eyes!). She knows that looking after her body is very important for flying high above the oak trees. Rosa waves her wings, which she calls her hands for now, and tells the children that moving the body every day makes you feel very happy and strong.

Word bank: la tête (la TET) - the head · les yeux (lay ZYUH) - the eyes · le nez (luh NAY) - the nose · les mains (lay MAH) - the hands · le corps (luh COR) - the body

1. According to the text, what does Rosa point to when she says 'C'est mon nez'? (1 mark)

2. Name two body parts mentioned in the French phrases in the text. (2 marks)

3. Why does Rosa need her eyes when she is in the park? (2 marks)

4. What does the phrase 'J'ai une tête' tell us about what Rosa is doing? (2 marks)

5. Do you think it is important for animals to stay healthy? Give one reason for your answer. (2 marks)

Draw: Draw a picture of a parrot wearing a small scarf, pointing to its own head, with labels in French for the head and nose.

Extension challenge: Can you find a partner and point to your own 'tête', 'nez', and 'yeux' while saying the French words out loud?
